

Year 4's Class News (Week beg 23rd January 2023)

This week we have been working hard on everything. The children have been focused and determined to well.

Our science topic on electricity is moving well. We have learned about where energy comes from, electricity in the home and we have had plenty of opportunities to make circuits and check that the energy in the battery is working well to light our bulbs.

The children enjoyed the English unit on writing a play script and had the chance to listen to the story of the plague at Eyam village. We role played different scenes with our partners and practised writing the setting for each scene using feelings, smells and punctuation.

I have also been impressed with the determination of the class to read more at home. They have been trying hard to read aloud with expression and find out what unfamiliar words mean. Those children who are reading more confidently will get the chance to move onto a different book band if they show a greater understanding of the text.

I hope you all have a lovely weekend and I look forward to continuing our learning next week.

Regards,

Mrs Neiland
